TO THE LEADER OF YOUTH

This pamphlet is in your hands because you are a leader of youth or for some reason are interested in that magic period of adolescence between twelve and twenty-three years of age. Therefore, we, the committee, would like to make certain facts clear to you before you go on to explore the pamphlet itself.

First, the subject of this pamphlet, "Book Friends of Youth," deals with an important part of a complete youth program and curriculum; it is, therefore, one in a series. The complete list of those available at present is printed on the inside front cover. We recommend that you secure the basic pamphlets and such of the resource pamphlets as will best fit your needs. The cover binder holds your materials in one place and will also contain your graded lesson quarterlies or other helps of a similar size; when one binder is filled with these working tools of the craft of youth leadership, many leaders procure another binder and thus create volume two of their leader's library. The youth materials are for your pupils themselves.

Second, these materials are to be used as aids in building a church program with youth. They suggest to the leader both an approach and a process for successful work with a group. In this approach and process the leader comes to recognize the elements that ought to enter into an abundant Christian life. The materials now prepared deal with those elements in such a program that are at present less adequately provided for elsewhere. They are intended to strengthen and supplement whatever lesson courses and other curriculum materials may now be in use in your church. The committee now has plans under way for developing, in co-operation with other committees at work in this field, a complete and unified curriculum into which these materials will in time merge.

Third, the name given to these program materials, The Christian Quest, with the sub-title "Youth and Jesus' Way of Life," was chosen by the committee only after consulting with youth itself. A vote was conducted by the committee among over three thousand one hundred young people between twelve and twenty-three years of age. These were from all denominations and from all sections of the United States and most of Canada, thus forming a cross section of church adolescent life. In the title chosen there have been combined the four ideas that had the readiest appeal to youth, namely, Quest, Christian, Youth, and Way. The committee is carrying forward further experimentation and study before recommending symbolic names for the three age-groups in the young people's division. The meaning of this name can be interpreted to youth in many ways and its appeal upon their lives is always deep and far-reaching. For example, worship programs built around the theme "The Christian Quest" are in the September, October, and November, 1928, numbers of the International Journal of Religious Education, 5 South Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Fourth, these materials are not intended for use exclusively in any one form of organization, but can be used in any organization that you and other local leaders decide is best suited for your local conditions.

Fifth, two denominations, the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., and the Methodist Episcopal Church, have issued slightly adapted editions of these materials for use in their churches. This has become desirable because of the desire of these churches to adapt these materials more closely to their own denominational types of organization than could be done in a pamphlet used by all communions. These changes are mainly in pamphlet number four on Organization. All the changes are in thorough harmony with the principles set forth in these materials. These two denominations have joined with the others in co-operatively creating and approving these materials in this present common edition. It is suggested that leaders of these churches secure their own denominational editions from their own headquarters.

Sixth, these materials are prepared by a committee representing thirty-nine denominations and a number of other agencies dealing with Christian programs for youth. So they represent a co-operative effort of North American Protestantism. The names of the committee members are given on the inside back cover of this pamphlet.

Yours in the Christian Quest,

The Committee on Religious Education of Youth.

"Literature is the immortal part of history; it is the best and most enduring part of personality."—William Lyon Phelps.

ENGLAND," wrote Victor Hugo once, "has two books, one which she has made and one which has made her; Shakespeare and the Bible." This is more than an epigram. The importance of the Bible in English life and literature is apparent to the most superficial student of English literature. In America too the phenomenon has been quite as apparent.

"Shakespeare," says Robert Louis Stevenson, "has served me best. Few living friends have had upon me an influence so strong for good as Hamlet or Rosalind. The next book, in the order of time, to influence me, was the New Testament." When our own great nature poet, William Cullen Bryant, first read Wordsworth, he said: "A thousand springs seemed to gush up at once into my heart, and the face in nature changed of a sudden into a strange freshness and life." Charles Kingsley expressed his praise of books when he said, "Except a living man, there is nothing more wonderful than a book!—a message to us from the dead—from human souls whom we never saw, who lived perhaps, thousands of miles away, and yet these, on those sheets of paper, speak to us, amuse us, vivify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers. I say we ought to reverence books, to look at them as useful and mighty things. If they are good and true, whether they are about religion or politics, farming, trade, or medicine, they are the message of Christ."

I. BOOKS—WHAT ARE THEY?

In the Philobiblon, the first English book on the joys of reading, printed in 1474, is a statement by Richard de Buoy, written in 1344 on the meaning of books. He certainly knew the joys of a close friendship with books.

"These are the masters who instruct us without rods and ferrules, without hard words and anger, without clothes or money. If you approach them, they are not asleep; if investigating you interrogate, they conceal nothing; if you mistake them, they never grumble; if you are ignorant, they cannot laugh at you. Books, therefore, are more precious than all riches, and nothing that can be wished for is worthy to be compared with them. Whosoever, therefore, acknowledges himself to be a zealous follower of Truth, of Wisdom, of Science, or even of Faith must of necessity make himself a lover of good books."

William Lyon Phelps says, "There are, of course, no friends like living, breathing, corporeal men and women; my devotion to reading has never made me a recluse. How could it? Books are of the people, by the people, for the people. Literature is the immortal part of history; it is the best and most enduring part of personality. But book friends have this advantage over living friends; you can enjoy the most truly aristocratic society in the world and whenever you want it. The great dead are beyond our physical reach, and the great living are usually almost as inaccessible; as for our personal friends and acquaintances, you cannot always see them. Perchance they are asleep, or away on a journey. But in a private library, you can at any moment converse with Socrates, or Shakespeare, or Carlyle, or Dumas, or Dickens, or Shaw, or Barrie, or Galsworthy. And there is no doubt that in these books you see these men at their best. They wrote for you. They laid themselves out; they did their ultimate best to entertain you, to make a favorable impression. You are as necessary to them as an audience is to an actor; only instead of seeing them masked, you look into their inmost heart of hearts." [1]

II. THE CHALLENGE OF BOOKS

There are 50,000 tobacco dealers in the United States and only 2,500 book stores. Thus 200 times as much effort is being expended to supply smoke as to develop intelligence. The sweet tooth as opposed to the keen mind presents an interesting fact. In America during 1926, we spent per person $18.15 for candy, ice creams, and soda to $1.10 for books, or over sixteen times as much for sweets as for books. In Russia nearly five times as many books are sold each year as in the United States. The figures are 240,000,000 to 50,000,000.[2]

[1] From a leaflet "A Private Library of Your Own," published by The National Association of Book Publishers. Used by permission.

It seems that youth with their elders are losing the art of self-entertainment. We pay others for that. Day by day we go with the current unaware of the great untouched stores of rich value waiting for all who open the door. A girl said to a leader the other day, "If I couldn't date or go to a show, I'd die." "Why don't you read for life's sake?" remarked the leader. Perhaps she did read, but what? Many people read the headlines in the newspapers and the trashy magazines, but are not the latter worse than nothing?

Youth, in the quest for life, need to find right habits of wholesome reading. For reading helps one to live universally. Books are the heritage of the past to the future. We need to remember, however, that reading the right kind of books is important.

During the past few years much emphasis has been given to physical development. A good library is a mental and heart gymnasium. For the complete development of a life, reading is a very important avenue. And what a world of good books there is for such a day. "I think of the world of books as having three dimensions," says Frank Mott, "Time, space, and thought. The time dimension gives the reader a view of all history, stretching back into the misty morning of legend, and bringing to our eyes heroes of old epic and romance, and world shaping events never to be forgotten. The space dimension gives a reader a view of all lands, the six continents and the seven seas that surround them, so that in his own arm chair at his own fireside he may visit Cathay and Samarcand, loll under a palm on a South Sea Island, or be rowed up the Nile in midwinter. But the greatest of all is thought dimension, for it transcends time and space. Through it, the world of books brings us knowledge of life; it interprets human existence."

As one reads this great statement by Mr. Mott, he cannot help but ask himself, "What is more important than the interpretation to youth, of human life, the comment upon its problems in history, essay, fiction; in the epic, the lyric, the drama?" Human life is the universal preoccupation

[2] Figures taken from The Literary Guild of America.

"The proper study of mankind," Pope insists in the familiar quotation, "is man." And who have studied mankind to more effect than the masters of literature?

And all of this world of books is very near to us. Human nature is much the same as when Ruth left the land of the Moabites as when Leander swam the Hellespont to be with his hero. Customs change; passions remain. As Miss Cynthia Pearl Maus says, "It is in books that we can in our own brief days become time-less, or in another way of looking at it, creatures of all times." For literature is a mirror of life, and youth who are in the midst of life are tremendously interested in understanding it. There is no key to its problems like the work of great literature.

Then the first great task of leaders of youth that needs to be set forth here is how to teach or share with youth a vital appreciation of good books.

III. RULES FOR READING

Many leaders have found it interesting to discuss rules of reading with the members of the group. The following may be suggestive:

1. Set aside a regular time for reading, especially for personal devotions. A college senior read during a college year in connection with his morning devotions these books: "The Wicket Gate"—Kennedy; "These Twelve"—Brown; "Out of the Hidden Years"—Oxenham; "With Christ"—Murray; and a great part of Moffatt's translation of the New Testament.

2. Read with full sympathy, following with an open mind the lines of the authors. Feel with him. Know him. Think for yourself, however, and do not hesitate to challenge him.

3. Read aloud as much as possible.

4. Re-read the parts you like best.

5. If the volume you are reading is your own, do not hesitate to mark in the margin the passages that appeal to you.

6. Think back. Consider what you have read in the light of the whole.

IV. SOME SPECIFIC SUGGESTIONS FOR LEADERS

1. MAKING THE BOOKS AVAILABLE

(a) Where possible and where there is a real need, the church should purchase a good library. A church in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, set aside $600 to start a library. Over four hundred volumes were purchased. To these, different organizations within the church will add from time to time.

(b) Individuals should be encouraged to build their own libraries.

(c) Youth should be urged to use the public library, if one is available.

(d) Arrangements can be made with state libraries for the use of books.

(e) Many groups use the plan of having each person buy a book and then make it available to other members of the group.

(f) Posters of great value may be secured from the National Association of Book Publishers, New York City, free of charge.

2. TEACHING AN APPRECIATION OF GOOD BOOKS

(a) The teacher can do much along this line. A certain person was past twenty years of age before he learned to appreciate poetry. His vision came from a Sunday-school teacher who made a practice of collecting striking poems that visualized life's ideals and using them as prayers and as a part of the lesson. It was the teacher's outstanding contribution to this young man's life. The effective teacher will be a wide reader and out of his influence will radiate the challenge of good literature.

(b) Sermons of the pastor will help greatly.

(c) Literary lectures and readers on special occasions, if of the right sort, help.

(d) Special book reports in connection with the lesson, "good book socials," and reading contests always have a good influence.

(e) Co-operation of parents in this matter is important.

3. HOW TO USE BOOKS IN THE CHURCH PROGRAM

As previously stated, the teacher and leader should tie up each lesson project with the great sources of literature. There is no end to the possibilities along this line. The project lesson to be successful must include some research reading and without a doubt leads to creative reading on the part of the student.

In a church in York, Pennsylvania, valuable and significant work has been done along the line of making books, friends of young people. During certain periods scores of mission books are read. There is a certain method of reporting. As a part of the whole year's program, each person is helped in building his reading program for the year. To some extent reading is stimulated by a system of awards.

Much can be accomplished through personal contact with young people. Direct the conversation to a good book and finally to a searching question as to the reading program of the individual. Book reports and a discussion of them help. Many young people keep scrap books of good quotations and of poems. Such a hobby has a good influence.

V. LISTS OF BOOKS

The books included here have been selected with great care. The leader, however, is urged to use discretion in selecting them. The prices are correct as far as could be determined at the time of going to press with this pamphlet. The books may be ordered from any bookstore. Leaders are urged to order, however, through their own denominational publishing houses. All of these are books which some of the agencies desired to have listed, and it is understood that the various groups will make their own selection from this list, and that no agency is to be held responsible for all the ideas in any book.

An attempt has been made to give some help to the leader in choosing books for a particular age. As far as possible, the decisions have been based upon authoritative grading as used in high schools and colleges of a number of states. All sections have been graded except the one with devotional books. "I," "S" and "Y" indicate the respective departments in the Young People's Division, Intermediate (12-14), Seniors (15-17), and Young People (18-23), for which the books are regarded as most appropriate.

The names and addresses of publishers are listed in full on page 21.

"Every book that we take up without a purpose is an opportunity lost of taking up a book with a purpose. We know that books differ in value as much as diamonds differ from the sand on the seashore. What are the books that in our little remnant of reading time it is most vital for us to know? For the true use of books is of such sacred value to us that to be simply entertained is to cease to be taught, elevated, inspired by books."—Frederick Harrison.

FURTHER TRAINING FOR LEADERS OF YOUTH

The successful leader of youth is continually growing in leadership capacity. Therefore, it is suggested that, in addition to the diligent use of these materials and of others that may supplement and enrich them from time to time, the devoted and ambitious leader will avail himself or herself of some of the following opportunities for further equipment in leadership:

(1) The Standard Leadership Training Curriculum developed co-operatively by thirty-nine denominations in North America. Many of the best leaders cover two units of this course each year in local church, community, or summer schools. Full information can be secured from the denominational headquarters, state or provincial offices, or the International Council of Religious Education.

(2) Reading of Books. The lists given in these materials will help. "A book a month" is the purpose of many.

(3) Reading of Magazines. All leadership journals issued by the denomination should be used. The International Journal of Religious Education serves the thirty-nine denominations co-operatively (5 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Illinois).

(4) Conferences, conventions, and leadership institutes. Information as to these can be secured from denominational, state, and provincial headquarters.

(5) Workers' conferences in the local school.

(6) Summer schools and summer training camps and conferences. These are conducted widely throughout the continent by denominations, co-operative councils, and the International Council of Religious Education. Full information can be secured by writing the headquarters concerned.

The Goal of the Christian Quest

THE goal of the Christian Quest is to weave the strands of Christian motive and purpose into the growing fabric of the ever-present quests of youth. For, go on quests they will, these youth of our day, quests of mind, eager searches of the body, quests for material gain, quests for new achievement, quests for the undiscovered secrets that God always holds beyond the fringe of our present knowledge as a reward for the intrepid pioneer. Shall they go forth on a pagan or a Christian quest, seeking a pagan or a Christian society, finding a pagan or a Christian answer to our problems of race and war and social strife? Shall the quest of their hearts be for a material kingdom, for mercenary success as an end in itself, for mere sensual thrill and satisfaction, for a devotion only to old forms and out-grown ways, or for a fellowship with God that shall be vital and transforming, for the Kingdom of God on earth, for new interpretations of the meaning of the age-old Evangel, for Christian habit in every area of life, and for a society that shall indeed be Christian? Shall they indeed seek first the Kingdom of God? Only the future can answer.
